TSC is pleased to announce the formal acquisition of Praxis Products as of 1 September 2021. Praxis Products is a premier solutions provider for SIGINT and wireless applications with advanced capabilities meeting unique mission needs. As a trusted partner of defense and law enforcement agencies, Praxis Products enables TSC to continue its expansion of mission critical products and solutions.

“Praxis Products is an exciting addition to the TSC team that brings a wealth of subject matter expertise for wireless and SIGINT solutions with a complementary set of hardware and software solutions. With their mission focused mindset and proven understanding of how to engineer and transition solutions for critical needs, they mesh well with TSC culture and provide support for TSC’s multi-domain, integrated hardware and software solutions.”

-Brandon Wolfson, President/CEO of TSC

Their family of products, called FASTRAK™, are critical in solving missions for customers around the world. FASTRAK™ is a single software baseline and open software interface running across multiple hardware configurations to provide unmatched capabilities for detection, collection, precision geolocation and analysis of multiple signals and targets.

“I, and the rest of the Praxis Team, could not be more pleased to be a part of TSC. When we spoke with potential partners in the marketplace it was immediately obvious that TSC shared our corporate values of customer success, personnel success, and technical excellence. Furthermore, TSC’s products and technical competencies mesh very well with our own and will allow us to bring exciting new capabilities to both our present and future customers. “

-Jeremy Kaufman Vice President of Praxis Products.

Praxis Products portfolio and capabilities mesh well with TSC’s hardware and RF expertise and allows us to expand our technology presence within the SIGINT, wireless and Electronic Warfare mission set. This and many other reasons make this an excellent addition to the TSC technology and product portfolio.
